

Lidings Law Firm has moved to a new office!

Lidings is delighted to inform you that our law firm has successfully commenced its operations in a new office in the Business Center "Pollars" which is located on the Moscow River embankment.

«At the moment the whole economy of the world is in stagnation, these are difficult times for all companies including legal firms, but it does not mean that this is a bad time for growth, expansion and hiring new competent legal professionals, - says the managing partner Sergey Aksenov, - we have already moved to a new and spacious Moscow office, and soon several skilled lawyers will begin their work here.»

“We consider that this crisis means not only numerous bankruptcies and reductions in staff numbers, but also new possibilities for business. We look with optimism to the future as we know what distinguishes us from other law firms, what makes us unique and what makes us indispensable in legal practice for all foreign companies in Russia. Our uniqueness is - we work only for foreign business on the territory of Russia, all our lawyers speak different foreign languages fluently, thereby making communication with us special in terms of convenience for any foreign company that does its business on the Russian market», - adds Yuri Grankov, head of the business development department. «In the Lidings team there are also foreign lawyers that speak with Clients in their native languages which makes dialogue and communication more flexible and easy, and we do not stop at that stage. This year we plan to hire more foreign legal staff», - Yuri Grankov says.

Managing partner Sergey Aksenov is convinced that the growth of Lidings will positively affect both the lawyers and the rest of the Lidings team. «Lidings is the first law firm that renders legal services exclusively to foreign companies doing business in the Russian market or planning to enter this market and we intend to strengthen our position in this sphere, thanks to the crisis», - Sergey Aksenov says.
