

Hale Lane Law Firm Joins International Lawyers Network

Nevada firm now part of a network of international law firms

NEW YORK, March 9 /PRNewswire/ -- Hale Lane law firm has recently joined the ranks of more than 87 international full-service law firms and more than 5,000 lawyers worldwide in the professionally acclaimed International Lawyers Network (ILN) as the representative from Nevada.

An association of both U.S. and international law firms, ILN members provide their clients with high quality legal resources across the world. As a member of ILN, Hale Lane will be able to provide its clients with legal services on a global basis.

Hale Lane is a full service law firm with offices in Las Vegas, Reno, and Carson City. Hale Lane represents the entire spectrum of business organizations, a factor that managing partner Tim Lukas says supported the choice to join ILN.

"We have experienced significant growth and an increased demand for our legal services here in Nevada," says Lukas. "As a firm, membership with a network such as the ILN will give us the means to expand our resources and services for clients.

Lukas says that ILN will also help Hale Lane provide local, regional and national clients with access to the global market place. In addition, the firm's membership gives them access to white papers, newsletters and articles to share with clients and potential clients regarding legal issues across the United States and around the world.

"The wealth of knowledge available to member firms is very impressive, and we plan to utilize these resources to help educate our attorneys, as well as our clients," said Lukas. "This is exactly what we were looking for in our exhaustive search for the right lawyer network for Hale Lane. It is a great fit and we are very pleased to become the newest member of ILN."
